"What we practice, we become."

Toke Moeller, Co-Founder of The Art of Hosting, The Flow Game, The Practicing for Peace Dojo

This workshop is for people that wish to cultivate more meaning and fulfillment through courage. It's for managers, facilitators, team leaders, consultants, coaches, entrepreneurs. It's for educators, artists, poets, musicians, faith community leaders, government administrators, community organizers, and social change activists.

Courage is bravery.

Courage is of the heart.

Courage is clarity.

Courage is simplicity.

Courage is celebration.

Courage is mustered commitment to these 15 minutes and then the next.

Courage is staying kind with things that hurt.

Courage is in the details.

Courage is in the bigger picture.

Courage is personal.

Courage is communal.

And more.

It takes courage to have a relationship with these many facets of courage.

This Pop-Up Workshop is about cultivating helpful relationship with courage. So as to lead and contribute with added ability. It's a simple format — some welcome, some check-in, some teaching, some engagement with others, some harvest of insights, and some check-out.

As before, I'll show up with my passion for learning and creating. For both the essential inner leadership, and, the essential outer leadership practice with people. You too, please.

Please share with others as inspired.

About Tenneson (www.tennesonwoolf.com)

I'm 30 years deep in a life of facilitating and leading groups. That's Art of Hosting. That's Circle. That's Flow Game. That's Living Systems & Self-Organization. I'm 60 years deep in trying to live as an awake human being. That's hard knocks. That's delightful celebrations. That's poetry. That's much companionship. I'm at a time of life when I'm attempting to share learning and practice as much as I can — the things under the things under the things — so that others can also go deeper.
